Sparking Connections: The "Secret Sauce" of the Effective Programming We Fund

At The Scott Foundation, we're passionate about connections: connecting people who want to do good and change the world; connecting big ideas with the funding to make them a reality; connecting all children to high quality education; and connecting high potential individuals with exciting opportunities to develop their social entrepreneurial spirit. We deeply believe that it is our duty to build empathetic bridges within our communities and to give back.

In our opinion, the programs which make the greatest impact are those that focus on family engagement, connecting children with educational opportunities and support, and providing women and girls with resources to succeed in STEM careers. In response to evolving opportunities and areas of need, The Scott Foundation has focused our portfolio growth in the areas of Educational Equity, Social Entrepreneurship and Social Impact.

As funders, we see our role as connectors who create synergies so that partners can accelerate, build momentum, and become sustainable outside of our involvement. We engage innovative programs and support their efforts to scale.

Essentially, we strive to connect the people, ideas and resources that can change the world.

The Scott Foundation is a private family foundation that empowers local Bay Area children to achieve their personal best. Philanthropists Shannon Hunt-Scott and Kevin Scott launched The Scott Foundation in 2014 to create opportunities for all children to achieve self-sufficiency and lifelong success. Through their philanthropic work, Shannon and Kevin hope to inspire their children and the next generation of leaders in understanding their place in the community and the importance of giving back.

President Shannon Hunt-Scott takes a hands-on approach to grantmaking, providing additional connections and support to the causes she believes in. She serves on the board of grantee organizations Breakthrough Silicon Valley, Educare California at Silicon Valley, and Hillbrook School.
